UPDATE PRESS RELEASE

George Bailey, Clallam County Fire Marshal, is announcing that a county-wide burn ban has been modified to permit campfires in established fire rings on private property and in campgrounds. The fire danger in general for Clallam County remains high, and people should be extremely careful.

This decision was made based on recommendations of the local fire districts as weather conditions have slightly eased the fire danger in Western Washington. The burn ban will remain in effect until further notice.

The Clallam County Fire Marshal's office works closely with local fire districts and local fire departments, and strongly urges all county residents and property owners to be attentive to the condition of their properties through proactive fire prevention measures.

Thank you,

George Bailey
Clallam County Fire Marshal
